

Leading the way

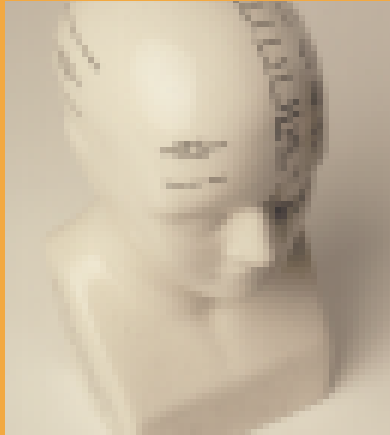

Many organisations have benefited from increasingly responsive team structures that are empowered to take their own initiative. But with this increased autonomy comes a need to ensure leaders have the required knowledge, skills and practical techniques at their disposal.

Why? Because teams still need strong leadership and direction. We've designed the Leadership Development course to give your organisation just that: expert leaders ready to face the challenges of modern business. In fact, the course also provides an excellent foundation for our team building programmes.

Of course, a quality course demands quality training. Which is exactly what our experienced team of trainers can bring to your organisation.

Let's work together

When it comes to offering the finest leadership training and consultancy, it makes sense to talk to the experts. Simply get in touch and we'll meet with you to discuss your company, people and needs.

Next, we'll design a Leadership Development course that talks your company's language. We'll ensure that the course matches both your requirements and your company culture. You see, throughout, we never forget that every organisation's needs are unique. And in our experience, that's what makes all the difference.

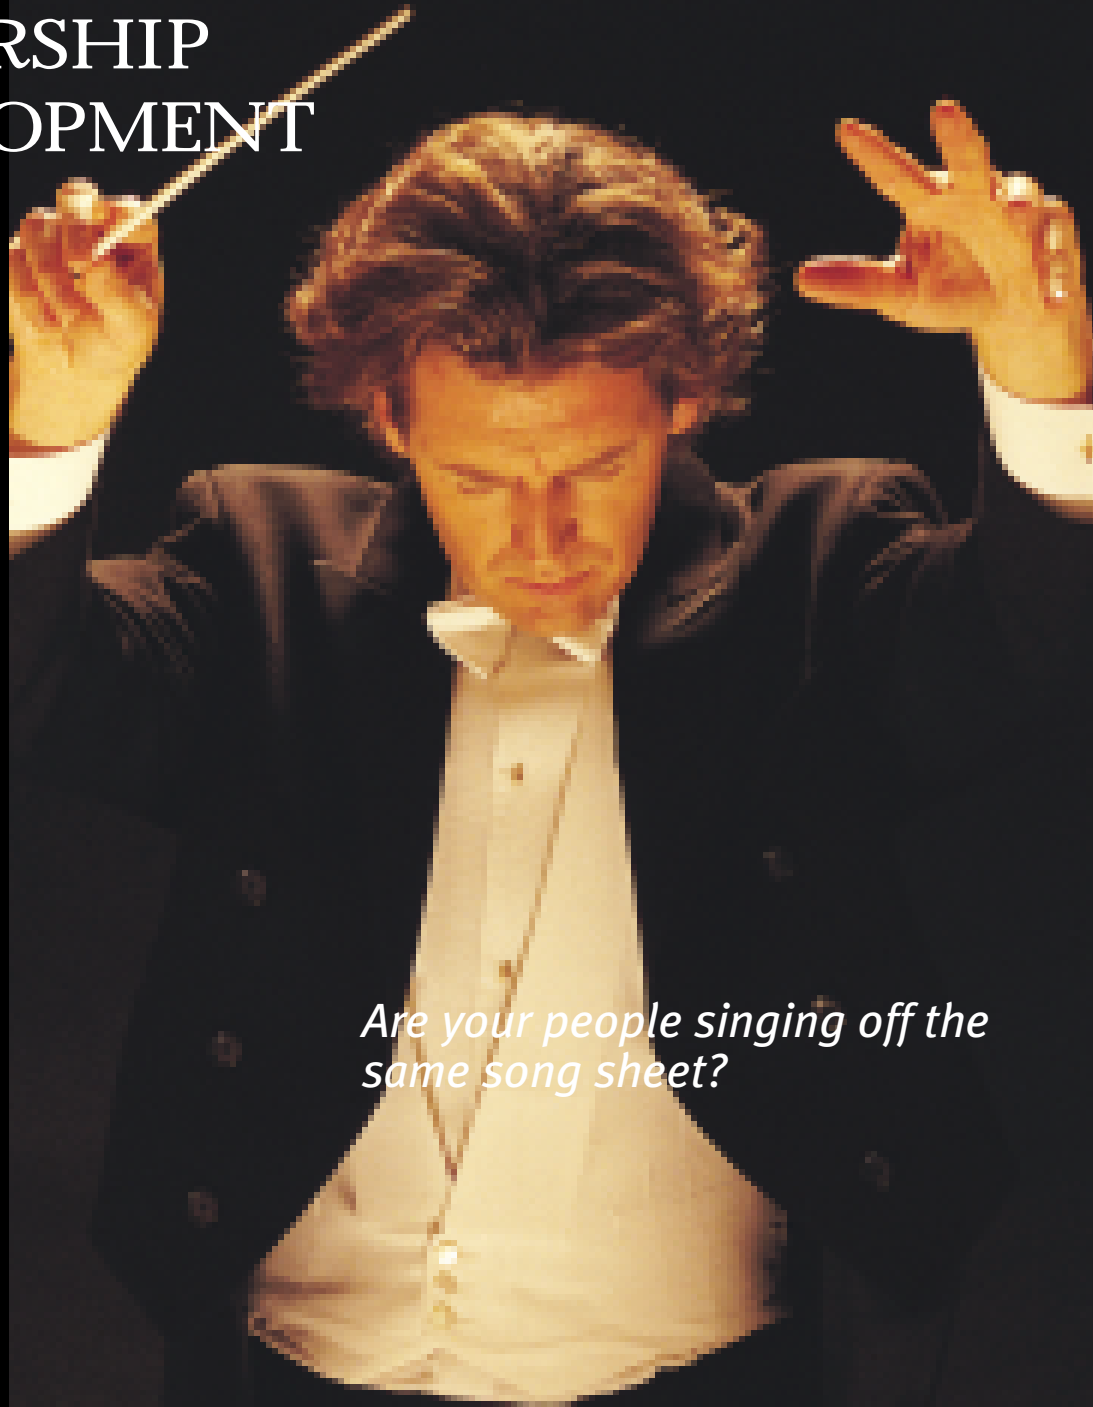

Alternatively, rather than a purely 'in-house' programme. If you would like your personnel to attend one of our generic courses, where they can exchange ideas with people from a wide spectrum of business interests, simply contact us. And they will experience one of the most rewarding leadership programmes they have ever attended.

LEADERS INSPIRE TEAMS...

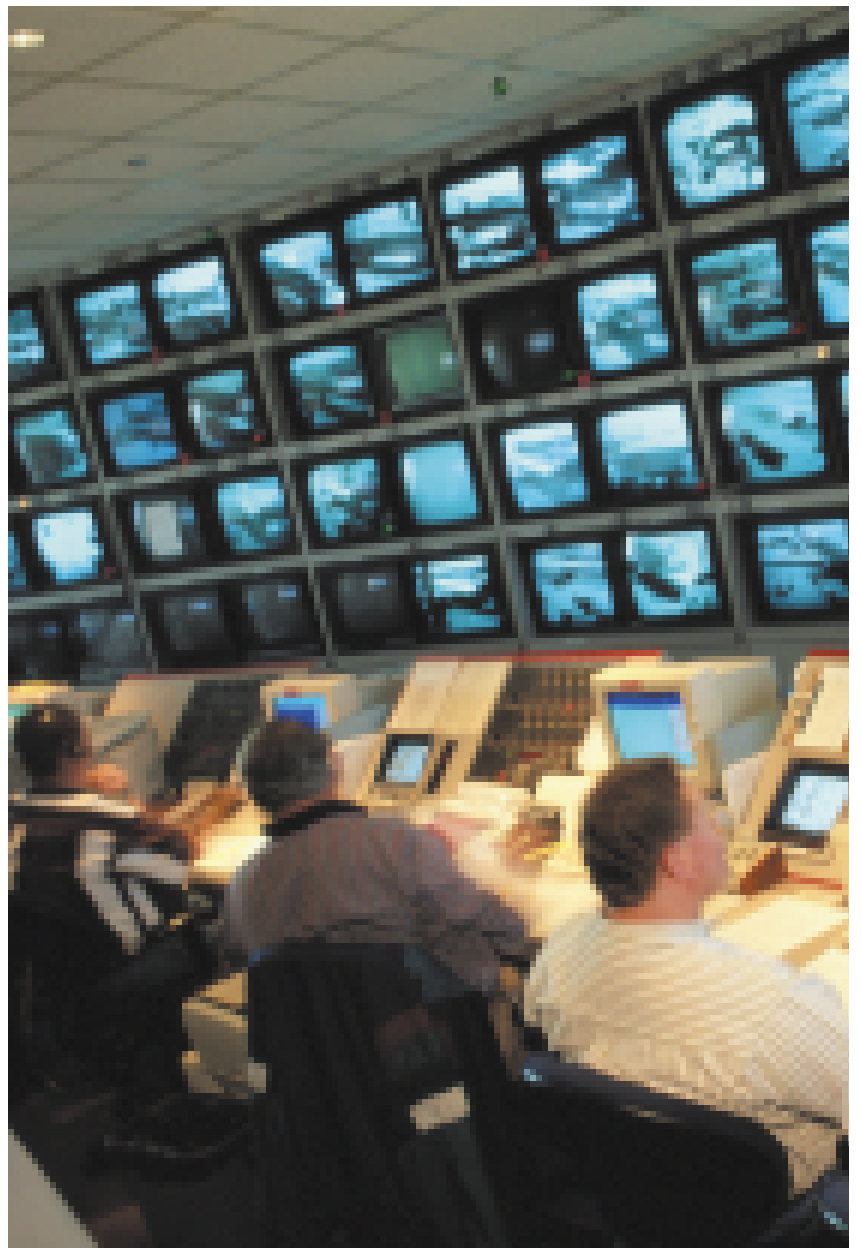

When it's time for direction...

What defines a great leader? In essence, it is those qualities that encourage others to follow, in thought or action. A unique combination of personal attributes which include humility, diplomacy, communications skills, personal integrity and, often, vision.

No two leaders are the same, some charismatic, others surprisingly low key but potent nonetheless. The consistent core is the ability to earn the respect and willing compliance of others, be they more senior, junior or peers of the leader.

Today, leaders are as important to organisations as ever, and they face increasingly more demanding responsibilities. To meet their organisational objectives, they must get the best from their people. Anything less doesn't count.

That's where the Leadership Development course can help. How? By unlocking your people's potential and equipping them with both profound leadership models and values, whatever their maturity level. Which can only be good for the teams and your business.

...INTO ACTION

Releasing the potential

Some say leaders are born. Others claim leaders are made. In our experience, either statement can be true. But whatever the reasons, the Leadership Development course consistently helps individuals improve productivity and performance.

It also encourages participants to analyse personality traits in themselves and others, helping them learn to identify, understand and develop their own leadership skills. Through practical exercises, the course reinforces learning and offers delegates the opportunity to examine many issues that prevent them achieving their full potential.

The benefits of the course

What topics does the course cover? Quite simply, every aspect of leadership: its meaning and the main approaches towards it; leadership styles and how to change between them; maintaining control of a team; delegating effectively; assessing risks... the list goes on.

Here are some of the benefits of attending the course:

- Develop the ability to inspire others
- Understand the need to develop yourself and those who report to you
- Appreciate different leadership styles
- Understand the behaviour patterns of others
- Develop a practical leadership model
- Become an effective team player
